Isley Challenges Tories To Demand Confidence Vote

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(CP)—A government request for another month's interim supply yesterday stirred the Commons to noisy debate which ended with Acting Prime Minister Isley challenging the opposition to move a vote of want-of-confidence if they felt that the government's conduct was "irresponsible."

"NOW, LET THEM go ahead and do it, if they want to," Mr. Isley shouted across the chamber as he tossed a volume of the British North America Act on his desk, at down and mopped his brow amid prolonged applause from the Liberal benches.

The debate, interrupted by thirty seconds as members shouted at each other across the floor, arose from a statement Tuesday by Mr. Isley that the government received its authority from the Crown and not from the House of Commons.

YESTERDAY, MR. ISLEY said he stood by every word he said Monday and repeated from Hansard the contention statement. "His Majesty's advisers are sworn in as advisers to the Crown. The government is responsible to parliament, but that is a different thing from the doctrine that the government is a committee of the House of Commons or that it exercises authority delegated by the House of Commons. That is not so."

IT WAS THAT STATEMENT which John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, challenged as "unintelligible," "incomprehensible," and "some of the most extraordinary constitutional principles which have been heard in this chamber since Confederation."

J. M. COLDWELL, CPC leader, joined the debate briefly to say he was "quite sure that the progressive spirit of this country will never admit that any power is derived from the Crown." The power was derived from the people of Canada.

THE DEBATE on the source of government authority resulted from Mr. Isley's refusal of a request by Mr. Bracken last week for the tabling of all orders-in-council passed since Parliament went into a session Sept. 6 and his refusal to create or the will of the elected table other government documents dealing with investigations into the shoe manufacturing industry.

"The government, without in my judgment, a shadow of justification,

By the author of the cartoon, L. A. J. Leitch.

On this issue the decision should not be left in doubt. Monday, in an attempt to justify the government's position, the acting prime minister enunciated some of the most extraordinary principles which have been heard in this chamber since Confederation.

"Slung by public criticism from coast to coast of his refusal to allow the representatives of the people to examine all orders-in-council passed while Parliament has been in session, he pronounced certain autocratic principles which have not been heard in any democratic chamber in the last century."

HOWEVER RIGHT MR. ISLEY may have been technically, in actual fact that principle was "as dead as Queen Anne," said Mr. Bracken, and he had no hesitation in saying the acting prime minister's attitude was a "betrayal" of much that Liberalism in Canada claimed to stand for.

Since the beginning of the session Sept. 6 the Commons has adjourned each Wednesday at 3 p.m. CST. If the motion is adopted it will all through until 10 p.m. CST as it does on other sitting days.

The motion is similar to others presented in previous years as a means of speeding up business.

Isley's Stand On House Power Is Said Wrong

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(CP)—Constitutional authorities on Parliament Hill yesterday were pondering the statement made by Acting Prime Minister Monday that while the government is responsible to Parliament, the government's authority is not delegated to it by Parliament but received from the crown.

A LIBERAL LAWYER, regarded by many as a constitutional authority, took issue with Mr. Isley's stand and in a memorandum claimed that to all practical purposes the Cabinet is to a committee of the House of Commons and cannot function without the confidence and the authority of Parliament.

This memorandum set out that Mr. Isley's statement with respect to the powers of ministers of the Crown as distinguished from those of the House of Commons are of far-reaching effect. Mr. Isley made his statement on the motion of John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, for the production of correspondence exchanged between officials of the Crown.

IN SUPPORT of his contention Monday that the government received its authority from the Crown and the cabinet was not therefore a committee of the House, Mr. Isley read Section 91 of the British North America Act. "The executive government and authority of the Crown is hereby declared to continue and be vested in the Queen."

The minister followed this by reading Section Ten. "The provisions of this act (BNA Act) referring to the governor-general extend and apply to the governor-general for the time being of Canada."

"THE AUTHORITY of the government," Mr. Isley continued, "is not delegated by the House. His Majesty's advisers are sworn in as advisers of the Crown."

"The government is responsible to Parliament, which I have admitted in every word of my speech but that is a different thing from the doctrine that the government is a committee of the House of Commons or that it exercises authority delegated by the House of Commons. That is not so."

First Nelson Death of War

NELSON, B.C., Nov. 14.—(CP)—The fate of war played one of their most agonizing games with the Gray family of Nelson, B.C., in winning Canada's 13th Victoria Cross of this war by crash ing his flaming Fleet Air Arm plane into a Japanese destroyer, Lt. Robert Hampton Gray became the last Nelson man to die during hostilities.

His younger brother, Jack B. Gray, had been the first. He, too, met death in the air. He was killed in February, 1942, flying as a flight-sergeant on gunner with the RCAF.

the lawyer in his memorandum

"The weakness of Mr. Isley's reasoning is in the fact that the King of the United Kingdom is a constitutional sovereign. He cannot delegate to his ministers more power than he possesses himself. His Majesty cannot maintain in office a ministry which does not possess the confidence of the House of Commons."

As a necessary consequence, the memorandum said the ministers of the Crown, although chosen by the King, or in Canada by the Governor-General, are there by the grace and with the consent of the House of Commons and can no longer exercise their functions when such consent is withdrawn.

"THIS IS CLEARLY demonstrated," he continued, "by the fact that there are a number of statutes enacted by the Parliament of Canada and giving jurisdiction to the head of each department, namely the particular minister of the Crown charged with its administration, certain definite powers and jurisdiction."

And His Majesty could not without the consent of Parliament extend that jurisdiction or add to those powers. Parliament could withdraw those powers by amending the statute."

"THE QUESTION before the house was whether the house could order ministers of the Crown to produce official documents. The minister of finance contended he could refuse tabling any document and that the house had no power to order the tabling of such documents inasmuch as the cabinet received its authority from the Crown and not from the house."

"It is a very subtle but distinct distinction," Mr. Isley would no longer be minister of finance if the House of Commons so decreed.

New Loan Sources For Alberta Homes

By CHESTER BLOOM

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—By providing authority to the government's new $25,000,000 Central Mortgage Corporation to hold property either in the corporation's own name, or in the name of His Majesty the King, the federal government has opened up sources of private loans to home builders in Alberta and Saskatchewan who have hitherto been unable to furnish satisfactory security.

This was brought out clearly in discussion of the bill in committee of the whole.

BY ENABLING the Dominion government to discounting mortgages to hold property in the name of the crown, Hon. J. L. Isley told the house such security could not be over-ridden by any provincial legislation injurious to the mortgage. Mr. Isley admitted that Alberta had corrected much of the legislation which has hitherto frightened private loan investment in house building. But the psychological fear of possible future actions still exists a restraint.

The new federal legislation will correct this situation. Where any province has legislation which may affect mortgage holders injuriously, the new government corporation can hold title to property on which money it guarantees has been loaned in the name of the crown. Provincial legislation cannot affect such loans.

and the government could not refuse to file documents ordered by the house.

SPORTS EDITOR

JACK MANSON'S exhibition of goaling at the Arena on Tuesday night was the finest seen this year and it is doubtful if his performance in the second period has been bettered at any time in the history of junior net-minding in this city.

Twenty-six shots—more than one per minute—were fired directly at the Maple Leaf goal during the second session. Ten of them came in an average of 20 seconds in the first five minutes and 10 more minutes in the 10th and 15th minutes.

Manson also stopped nine in the third five-minute period session of the first hour.

Maple Leafs are nobodies' push-over in the junior league. Johnny Colville's first starring Jimmy King, Mike Thomas and Bud Peterson (Bob Jackson) were in for Bud a considerable portion of the time, due to Jack's ineffectual hand.

THAT THOMAS line really was dynamic for Canadians last night. This unit accounted for 11 out of a total of 16 scoring points. Bill Gadsby got in for two goals and an assist, while Don Matthews, his co-defender, added one goal. Harry Groves picked up an assist. The Gadsby-Matthews defense is shaping up as the best seen in Edmonton in years.

Maple Leafs will play a two-game series in the Edmonton and Calgary on Friday and Saturday of this week. Ed Bruchet, newly elected president of the AHA, has been surprising a club with his sights raised for the Alberta junior title. Last season Moose Jaw edged them out in a Saskatchewan-Alberta juvenile title series. Now Maple Leafs are being invited to Lethbridge as a junior measuring stick.

Henry White, the power behind the Maple Leaf Athletic Club for some years, has been named as Edmonton for a few days and of course took last night's game. Henry has just finished a lengthy stretch in the Canadian Navy.

HOCKEY ADDICTS should not overlook the Independent League, whose schedule calls for a double-header each Wednesday night. The leadership for the moment hinges on the outcome of tonight's game between Swifts and Street Railway.

The Independent circuit—call it an intermediate loop if you like—in addition to supplying a good brand of hockey is doing an increasingly important job for the game. Those boys just out of junior who are not turning out to be moving into or not continuing in senior for various reasons, are CANADIANS made it two straight in the City Junior Hockey League as they overcame a stubborn Maple Leaf sextet 9-4 at the arena on Tuesday night. Paid attendance was slightly over 700.

Undoubtedly inspired by superlative goaling performance on the part of Jack Manson, the Leafs continued to fight back and while at times the attack seemed to be a Canadian versus Manson matter, they never yielded.

Manson had 61 shots to handle, 26 of them in the middle stage, when for minutes at a time, Canadians would hold the puck inside their opponent's blue line.

DOON MURRAY's business at the opposition net was a real test for the Leafs. He had a total of seven in that column.

Max Bentley and Bill Mosienko of the league-leading Chicago Blackhawks hold down a two-way tie for the lead with 10 points. Bentley with eight goals and two assists, and Mosienko with four goals and six assists.

Food Becomes an Obsession With Karelko
Captives, and While They Get Little Of It, Jap Beatings, Cruelties

In today's touching 32nd article of his dramatic series, General Jonathan M. Wainwright tells more about what went on at the cruel removal from the place—EDITOR.

By GENERAL JONATHAN M. WAINWRIGHT
(Copyright 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc., and The Edmonton Bulletin. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

We made a point of having the best Christmas we could scrape together at Karelko prison camp in 1942. Our spirits were so low at that time of the year we knew we must find some kind of spiritual lift or abandon all hope. Christmas of 1942 thus became more than a holiday; it became a hook on which to hang our very lives.

COL WILLIAM F. BRALEY had somehow managed to save his violin from the Japs. His playing often was a great solace to us in the barracks and, fine musician that he was, he formed and became leader of a good choir made up of the prisoners.

We had no song books but, happily, several officers remembered the words of some of the more familiar Christmas carols, and these they sang, religiously practiced in the days leading up to December 25.

WE ALL WANTED TO GIVE the appearance of being carefree on Christmas Eve. I was still rocky from a couple of beatings and the beri beri I got up and joined in the decorating of our barracks, and the wearing of small presents, after we had had our Christmas Eve supper of the rice and the hot water the Japs called soup.

WE CUT UP OLD cigar boxes and anything else we could find that was covered and covered the bits into a sign reading "Merry Christmas." Some of the boys brought in a bit of greenery from the track garden in which we were working, and spread these about in the manner of holly.

When we had done all this there was to do, at giving the barracks a holiday air, we sat down to admire it—proud as we knew it was—and tried to talk of the Christmas we had known without choking up.

Then the choir began to sing as robustly as they were able to permit. They started in the far end of the barracks, singing a carol or two for each squad. I went into my room and sat down on my cot, could hear their voices coming closer.

AT LAST THEY were outside my door and, after a pause, they began to sing an old favorite of mine, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." I could not help pouring my head in my hands. I was so glad they could not see me.

Something came over the Japs on Christmas afternoon. To our grazing the goats in the wrong place.

SOMETIMES think that such mean and preposterous punishment as this was almost as palling as the shock of being brutally beaten. I had had the strength that day, and my feet had not been loosened by malnutrition, and we had been chewing through that fence.

But Col. Hamilton could not have taken a number of simple slaps during the past few preceding weeks. When the nincompoop Jap flicked us on the nose, Hamilton just turned his head to me, like a man in a stock, grined and said: "You been hit a damn right harder than that."

The goats grew with exasperating slowness and the food at Karelko became, if possible, worse. Though he knew full well the inevitable outcome of a constant diet of Chen Lawrence, formerly an instructor at the Quartermaster's School at Chicago, got up a protest to the camp commander.

"BOOTS" TOLD the Jap soldier in charge of our kitchen to stand. The soldier immediately stepped the Japs. Lawrence found it impossible to believe that men could be such beasts. Certain that he could not have been understood, he turned back to "Boots" and was sent to the kitchen again, after the Japs had been told that he had protested the beating, and he took another military whipping.

Keen interest in the activities of the school board, by Edmonton teachers was displayed Tuesday when a body of about 20 teacher representatives attended the first meeting of the new trustees in the Civic Block.

A desire for closer co-operation between trustees, teachers, Home and School Associations and other allied organizations was expressed by Harold Grey, elementary school representative to the meeting.

F. ARMOUR FORD, KC, was appointed chairman of the board on the recommendation of George M. Corrie, Mr. Ford was chairman when he resigned in 1939 to go on active service with the Canadian Army.

All the newly elected trustees, with the exception of A. E. Ottewill who is ill, were present at the meeting. The new trustees include the chairman, Mrs. Mary Butterworth, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Haynes, and James C. Macdonald. Mr. Ottewill was re-elected to the board and will carry on from the previous board.

Four delegates to the Alberta Trustees Convention which opens in Edmonton on Wednesday were appointed. They are Mrs. Mary Butterworth, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Haynes, and James C. Macdonald.

SPAKING ON BEHALF of the teachers' association, Mr. Grey said he hoped to see some action regarding closer co-operation between various organizations interlocking in education result from the convention.

One important question which he deemed important, he said, is the juvenile delinquency, he said.

A juvenile delinquent is usually a neglected child. He's neglected by his parents, and by the community and we'll have to discover some better way of dealing after such cases," he said.

MR. GREY ALSO requested the board to hold special conferences with teacher representatives to discuss purely educational matters.

In the past months of school improvement for conversion into housing accommodation units as materials to complete the change-over he was extremely difficult to obtain, Mayor Harry Ainlay stated Tuesday evening following the request of the survey.

He added that some other buildings had been inspected and that these could be more easily converted into housing but they are not being released at present. It is understood that the structures will be placed on the United States army surplus list in the near future.

MAJOR AINLAY said he was very hopeful that some emergency accommodation would be forthcoming by the end of the year. Structures being released by the United States authorities.

He said also that an inspection of buildings at the exhibition grounds would be made Wednesday to determine if any of them could be readily converted into temporary housing accommodation.

MR. HAYNES WAS APPOINTED to represent the school board on the Edmonton Recreation Commission.

Major Harry Ainlay was granted a year's leave of absence from his post as director of the city of Edmonton and Robert R. Fisk, BA, was appointed to the temporary staff of that school to fill the vacancy.

This and the following appointments to the elementary teaching staff were made on the recommendation of school superintendent S. S. Sheppard: Mrs. Mary Cole, Mrs. Lois J. Cummins, Mrs. F. Haggin, Mrs. Vera Martin.

The superintendent's report on the progress of the school board over an overall increase of 500 students in Edmonton schools compared with the same time last year and a sharp decline in absenteeism was presented.

THE BOARD APPROVED the hiring of 18 night firemen for city schools for the winter months and

Municipal Council Deadlocked

Vermilion, Marwayne, Kitscoty

On Headquarters Whereabouts

By A. C. BALLANTINE

There is luck in odd numbers. Or if that's going too far no one can deny that even numbers have caused a deal of grief for the Vermilion municipal district council.

SO MUCH SO that the provincial department of municipal affairs, of which Hon. C. E. Gerhart is minister, is thinking of directing the council to choose a Jonaiah from among their number to toss him to the whales.

Ever since the municipal district of Vermilion was created ten months ago the council has been disgraced as to where the municipal offices are to be situated. The residents have a fairly definite idea, but it seems they are divided as to much.

THE DISTRICT INCLUDES the towns of Lloydminster, Vermilion, Marwayne and Kitscoty, and according to the act under which it was set up the municipal offices "shall be in a place chosen by the council and approved by the minister."

Provisionally Marwayne was chosen as the "capital," but when this came to the board of ten councillors they decided to divide. At a later late a second vote in the council chamber had the same result, five of the councillors voting to keep the offices at Marwayne and five for removal to Kitscoty.

WHEN MUNICIPAL elections came the council was referred to the burghers, not by a by-election, but by referendum. The popular election proved to be Kitscoty, but a rather notable result was that some late day, election technicalities resulted in the uneating by the courts of eight of the ten elected councillors, and another election had to be held.

But in the meantime, the council had attacked the problem again. This time was a bit stickier, but getting into action, for the councillors threw out the people's verdict in favor of Kitscoty and themselves, and no ground was alleged that such a verdict acted in violation of the constitution.

THUS, WHETHER THE PEOPLE liked it or not, it seemed for the moment as if the council had made their own decision. But at the next meeting they rescinded their own decision, cast the whole thing back into the same old mill, and stopped at a five-stalemate.

Now entered the minister of municipalities.

municipal affairs telling the council to make up their minds for the last time by Nov. 8 or else.

That was last Thursday. The councillors met in emergency session, and five of them voted for Kitscoty and five for Marwayne.

IF THE LAW is to be fulfilled the councillors must choose their county town and the minister must approve it. But the minister cannot approve it because the councillors have not chosen and cannot choose it.

The alternatives are either for the minister himself to name the site or order the strength of the council to be reduced by one so that the deadlock can be broken.

The latter course will be followed, the minister says.

Dismiss Appeal
Former Soldier

Howard G. Buse, Edmonton district conscientious objector, was unsuccessful in his appeal against court martial conviction and sentence of eight months in prison, when the Alberta court of appeal dismissed his appeal.

THE APPELLANT was charged with desertion from the Canadian Army placed on active service, he disobeyed a lawful command given by his superior officer. He was found guilty of desertion and sentenced to eight months in prison.

No question was raised following sentence that there had been in his commitment to the provincial jail, or that the officer making the order committed legal authority so to do.

Ontario Ford Dispute

Local Trade Union Workers

Back Sympathy Strike Plan

Initial move in organizing trade union centres for a one-day strike in sympathy with the workers of the Windsor plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, was launched here Tuesday night when about 100 persons unanimously adopted a resolution to that effect at a trades union rally held in the Masonic Temple.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS were Robert Heavener, Calgary, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CIO); Jack Hampson, Edmonton representative of the United Packaging Workers of America (CIO); A. M. Hark, Edmonton, recording secretary, Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Union (AFL); and, Mrs. Langlet, secretary, Edmonton Labor Council.

THE resolution in support of the strike in the Ford plant stated the failure of the Dominion government to amend legislation preventing the making of union security mandatory. It pleaded that the attitude of the Ford company is "refusing to budge" constituted a danger to the whole trade union movement of Canada, which it continued, "could not permit the strike to be lost."

THE MEETING also approved the sending of a telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, requesting that police be withdrawn from the Windsor strike area and that the Ford plant be taken over by the government. It further requested legislation providing for union security in the plant pending general legislation covering all industry.

Mr. Lakeman in opening the meeting remarked that the struggle of the automobile workers in Windsor was not one confined to the workers of the Ford plant. It was a struggle of fundamentals affecting everyone in Canada.

HE RECALLED the strike of 1935 at Winnipeg, which he said, centred on collective bargaining. Support for it came from many western cities but it was eventually lost through inactivity and disunion which resulted in almost the complete destruction of the workers of the Ford plant.

"At Windsor it is going to be decided whether there will be decent jobs at decent wages under decent working conditions, or whether labor is to take advantage of M-thats is the issue," stated the chairman.

Mr. Langlet said he thought from recent disputes that the packing plants were going to be in the forefront in leading the fight, and added he regretted it had not come to that.

SWIFT ACTION was initiated by the government in taking over the packing industry because it was in the packing industry that there was spread economy of the nation, said the Edmonton Labor Council secretary.

HE CHARGED that it was the government's duty to do the same at the Windsor plant, but that they were refusing neutral because the production there had not been fully recovered to peacetime production, and that in this case they would not seriously affect the nation for some time.

HE SAID HE FEARED a return of the conditions which existed during the last war unless labor recognized the symptoms in time. Veterans of this war were watching their veterans with a new eye, and it was not surprising, and if employment conditions were allowed to deteriorate after the majority of the gratuities were used up there would be "another" times in Canada, he declared.

"All labor wants is an opportunity to insure security on a par with the rest of the nation," declared Mr. Langlet.

He denounced the attitude of Henry Ford prior to the war and in the stand taken by his industry at Windsor.

"I DO NOT WANT to see bloodshed," said Mr. Langlet, "but I say that if the troops had gone to there it would have started revolution—perhaps even, perhaps early subordination, nonetheless, revolution with consequent bloodshed."

He appealed to organized labor to lend their support, and the 32,000 employees on strike at Windsor, "whose fight of today is their right, will more than likely be of tomorrow," he said.

Next, the same sentiment was expressed by the three remaining speakers, Mr. Hark, Mr. Hampson and Mr. Heavener. They urged that the government make the plant and
